Choices & Challenges: Contemporary Families

Guest Editor

Heather Laube, PhD

University of Michigan - Flint

Submission of original research and critical reviews are encouraged on all topics related to the study of family choices and challenges, including, but not limited to family forms, attitudes towards motherhood/fatherhood/parenting, issues of identity, caregiving or childrearing within the context of different family forms, juggling family commitments and work/education/leisure, etc. We encourage research that takes into consideration the diversity of family forms and that employs an intersectional analysis. Of particular interest are articles that present information related to the choices and challenges facing women and men in contemporary families. We especially encourage submissions from students. Submit manuscripts electronically by October 15, 2013, to Heather Laube at hlaube@umflint.edu. Please include "Michigan Family Review" in the subject line.

For information about submissions please see: <http://quod.lib.umich.edu/m/mfr/about.html>
