

EPIDEMIC AS SUCH THOUGHT TO BE SPENT

MARKED FALLING OFF IN DEATHS AND NEW CASES REPORTED.

WARNS CONVALESCENTS

Should Beware of Tuberculosis, Says Dr. Roby.

NURSES GREATLY NEEDED

Those Who Have Not Been Called into Service Asked to Report at the Red Cross House—Mortality Among Sufferers in the Epidemic Is Lowest Since October 20th

Reports received yesterday at the Health Bureau indicate that epidemic influenza has practically burned itself out in Rochester. Physicians reported 167 new cases, a drop of seventy-two from the previous day, while reports were received of nine pneumonia cases, a falling off of seven from Friday's record.

There were thirteen deaths from influenza and four from pneumonia, the lowest mortality since October 20th. There have been 400 deaths from influenza and 118 from pneumonia since the epidemic disease became general in the city. The Health Bureau has received reports of 11,592 cases of influenza and 353 cases of pneumonia.

Warning to Convalescents.

Dr. Joseph Roby, acting health officer, and last night that Rochester is practically clear of further danger from the epidemic. He advises all who have been affected with influenza or pneumonia to exercise more than usual care during the convalescent period in order to avoid tuberculosis.

"An inflamed condition of the lungs that accompanies these diseases or an unresolved pneumonia make it easy for tuberculous bacilli to lie in a weakened spot," said Dr. Roby.

"The bacilli might have lodged quietly in the lungs for years. These may become active or new ones may find lodgment. A person who has had influenza or pneumonia should be extremely careful. I favor a long and slow convalescence. Frequent examinations are advisable in order that one may be certain that he is not running a fever. Have your physician make an occasional examination of your sputum."

Cases and Deaths at Hospitals.

Agnes Connelly, whose death was reported yesterday, was nursing as a Red Cross nurse at the Y. W. C. A. emergency hospital when she contracted influenza, from which she died at the Hahnemann Hospital.

Twenty cases of influenza were reported during the day at hospitals. The General Hospital received eleven patients, and Mrs. Amy Clark, of No. 123 Bolton street, died at this institution.

The Hahnemann Hospital reported five new cases and one death. Four cases were received at the Hahnemann Hospital.

Emmett McGuire, of No. 118 Plymouth avenue south, died of pneumonia at St. Mary's Hospital.

Although the influenza epidemic is waning the influenza nurses at the Red Cross House is just as great as when it was at its height. Close to 50 nurses have registered at the Red Cross House, but some of these have been called into service. Nurses who have not been called are requested to get their names on the house at once, as they are badly needed. Call Steno 5908 or Chase 1011.

Closing Orders Will Be Rescinded Tuesday Night, Authorities Announce

Closing orders that have been in effect since epidemic influenza threatened to become widespread in Rochester are to be rescinded on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, according to an announcement made yesterday by H. Andrew Hamilton, commissioner of public safety. A formal order abrogating the restriction imposed on places of public assembly will be issued to-morrow.

Continued improvement in the situation has been evident for several days, and Dr. Joseph Roby, acting health officer, said that he was convinced that the epidemic would have run its course by Tuesday, the time mentioned by Dr. Roby in his recommendation to Commissioner Hamilton for rescinding the closing orders.

Sergeant Van Hoven Tells of Going Over Top and Being Hit Twice; Bullet Through Cheeks

Among the Rochester men in Company G, 108th U. S. Infantry that went over the top was Sergeant Richard Van Hoven, a member of the Tower class of the First Reformed church's Bible school. The pastor of the church received a letter from him telling of his experience. He wrote:

"We went over the top just after I received your letter. We had to leave our letters and diaries and other things that would give the enemy any information as to who we are and where we came from. We went into the line last Friday September 27th a few miles north of Bellecourt between Cambrai and St. Quentin.

"On Monday morning at 6 we went over the top yelling like Indians and joking and laughing. We were under one of the heaviest barrages ever put out; and sure it was a peach.

"The tanks went ahead of us, and it was a sight worth seeing. As far as you could see, you saw only one way of tanks after another. All were about from five to seven paces apart and walking very slowly. Their rifles were over their shoulders and the bayonets were shining. Our pockets were bulging out with hand grenades, shells were bursting on all sides, and if a man dropped it was against rules for even his best chance to lie up his wounds, because it would leave a gap in the line.

"After we got closer to the Jerry's line, the rifles were carried so that we could use the gas and quietness. Just before we got there, we ran into dense clouds of smoke and gas. Just stopped the men long enough to put on their masks, and on they went.

"I had lost my second wound by that time, and I figured out I had enough for the present, so I leaved my bombs at a couple of Jerry's. Took a few souvenirs off of them and started back.

"I had lost my wounds myself. So I walked back about three miles and got an ambulance to take me the rest of the way.

"I am in England now (Worcester) enjoying sleeping between real white sheets, and on a regular bed. I miss all the good eats because I have to live on bread and milk. I wouldn't have to eat that if the bullet that went through my face, had not got my teeth and gone a little higher. I should worry, though. It'll leave me with a dimple. The other wound is in my left arm, though not very bad.

"I'll S. We won that day anyway, and are still winning. Jerry won't last long now."

Representatives of Great Britain, Belgium, France to Attend After-War Conference in City this Month

Suggestion for the solution of problems which will have to be decided by the United States government or state or city governments after the war will be given by representatives of Great Britain, France and Belgium at a conference to be held here from November 10th to 20th. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the National Maritime League to discuss American reconstruction problems.

Americans will have the opportunity to hear French and Belgian representatives of European nations who are planning to handle after-war problems. England and France, and in fact all of the Allies, have been at work for two years or more on plans to rebuild their own industries and civil life, and reach out for foreign trade after the war. Germany, also, has planned ahead, and it is urged that if the United States is to take its rightful place in the world's affairs in the years to come, adequate preparations must be made far in advance. Officers of the National Maritime League, will hold this conference in the hope that a start soon will be made in this direction.

"Replanning the United States" will be the subject of an address by P. L. Ackerman, a New York architect now connected with the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

One of the sessions will be devoted to a discussion of the government of many new communities that have been brought into existence by war-time conditions such as those at the great shipbuilding plants and munition plants.

Hamilton also, has planned ahead, and it is urged that if the United States is to take its rightful place in the world's affairs in the years to come, adequate preparations must be made far in advance. Officers of the National Maritime League, will hold this conference in the hope that a start soon will be made in this direction.
