his business life and universally popular with all of the many thousands of people who had dealings with him during the period of almost a quarter of a century that he engaged in that business.

He started when a lad as a messenger for the Massachusetts National bank, continued with that bank until the consolidation, about 12 years ago, that resulted in the organization of the Massachusetts Focasset National bank and he continued with this latter bank, advancing steadily until he was appointed to the responsible position of note teller. His was a genial spirit, marked by good nature that never faltered, no matter how trying conditions might be. Any customer of the bank needing assistance had it from Mr. Canfield promptly upon application. He will be greatly missed.

Mr. Canfield was 38 years of age. He was born in this city, attended the public grade schools, and took the course at B. M. C. Durfee high school. He left school about 22 years ago to enter the bank at 17. He was married and is survived by his wife, who was Miss Ella A. Thackeray. His mother, Mrs. C. Lillie Campbell, and two brothers, Clifford and Harvey J. Canfield, also survive. Funeral services are to be held Wednesday noon at 12, main street, at the family residence, 749 Hanover street.

RED CROSS AS CLEARING HOUSE DURING EPIDEMIC

The Civilian Relief department of the Red Cross has undertaken to act as clearing house in the present epidemic. The situation is serious. There is no need for alarm, but the facts must be faced and every person in Fall River who to prevent the spread of the disease. Do not assume that you have got to have the grippe, simply because someone you know has it. Keep away from your family as you can and should keep well. Every person who tries to avoid spreading the disease is helping to get Fall River out of the influenza maze.

Keep away from people you know have it. There is a great deal of visiting of sick people going on. This is not only unnecessary, but positively wrong and, at this crisis, unpatriotic. Keep out of every house where there is a sick person, unless your business is imperative. Keep away from that person, or if absolutely necessary to go near, have in your pocket a least a cloth before the mouth and nose.

In families, isolate the patient, no matter what hardship it involves. Keep the patient away from the rest of the family. Shut off the patient as in any contagious disease. Don't think that because you live in the house you have to have the grippe, too. You don't, and reasonable care can prevent the spread of any disease. There must be isolation and prevention if good results are to be obtained.

The Red Cross is trying to assist people in obtaining a physician after they have been unsuccessful in consulting their own physician. The only way in which the work can be attended to at present is for the specialists to step in and help in the general practice of the physicians who are not rushed will be asked to help those who are, even at the cost of personal sacrifice. Every doctor will be working to the limit of his capacity, and perhaps beyond, if this thing is to be checked. Relief will be asked from the emergency committee until that is over. The operation of every agency will be taxed to the utmost. The big fight is on here, as well as overseas, with everything in the line of relief, almost everyone in Fall River must do his bit, but the very utmost of which he is capable.

Get busy now and make sure that you are doing all you can to prevent the spread of influenza. Nothing is unimportant.

INSTRUCTIONS OF BOARD OF HEALTH

What to Do Till Doctor Comes. Advice to Attendants in Sick Rooms—How to Avoid Infection Generally.

The Board of Health has issued the following instructions regarding the care of patients and the prevention of disease in the present influenza and pneumonia epidemic:

What To Do Until the Doctor Comes.
Influenza may begin as a common cold. At the least suspicion of having the disease, go to bed and remain there. Take a laxative. Drink much plain water. Take plenty of simple, light food, milk, eggs, toast and simple soups. Do not irritate and injure the linings of the mouth and nose, which nature has arranged to arrest and destroy germs, and so invite infection. If you take these steps—the chief of which is to remain in bed—you will probably not be seriously sick. Go to bed, now—do not wait until you are ill. Even if you discover later you have only a common cold and not influenza, there is no better treatment than to be in bed.

Advice to Attendants.
Influenza is communicable. The contagion is due to the influenza germ. The germ is contained in the secretions from the lungs, mouth and nose. It is spread chiefly by droplets that are expelled by coughing, sneezing, laughing and talking. These are thrown out at the level of the mouth for a distance of several feet and then float for awhile in the air. They are breathed in by a well person who may be near and he is infected in this way. Anyone having the disease, or who possibly may have it, should always hold before his mouth when coughing, etc., a cloth or a piece of paper or something to prevent the germs from falling into the surrounding air. These cloths, etc., should be burnt or buried to kill the germs without being burnt or rolled away with the germs.

Anyone attending a sick person sick with influenza or coming directly into his presence, should wear a gauze mask over his mouth and nose. The mask must be changed for a new one when wet or every few hours any mask that has been used should be burnt or buried. These masks are made of several thicknesses of gauze, or cotton cloth if no gauze is to be had, fastened over the head so as to cover the mouth and nose. The hands should be washed immediately after attending anyone sick and always before eating and wiped on a clean towel or not wiped at all. Keep your hands out of your mouth. Anything used by any person, whether sick or well, for eating, drinking must be cleaned and scalded before used again.

The influenza germs when expelled from the mouth are killed by daylight and still more rapidly by direct sunlight. All bed linen, towels, etc., used over the head, as well as sheets, blankets and bedding should be thoroughly exposed out of doors to daylight and sunshine.

How to Avoid Infection Generally.
To avoid contagion keep out of places where people are. Do not let anyone cough, etc., into your face. Keep your mouth shut. Wash your hands frequently. Avoid getting tired—go to bed early. Eat your meals regularly and slowly. If compelled to eat away from home, see that the dishes and cups are clean. Keep where the air is fresh. Keep from any place where the disease is. If you must go into the presence of those sick, cover your mouth and nose with the mask or some similar protection—a handkerchief is better than nothing. Wrap up a used mask, etc., in any paper and burn it before using again or burn it.

If one takes these precautions, the chance of being infected is not great.

NORTH END

AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.

Sunday services at St. Joseph's church consisted of four low masses, with the customary sermons omitted. The session of Sunday school and the sodality meetings scheduled for the afternoon were postponed in accordance with the health board's recommendation.

The annual visitation by the priests of the parish to the homes is scheduled to begin this week for the purpose of taking up the census and the offering for the annual collection. The contribution may be deferred until the last Sunday of this month, or for that matter, until Dec. 20, when the lists will be closed for the year.

Confessions will be heard Thursday afternoon and evening for all who desire to receive the holy eucharist on Friday morning, when masses will be offered up at 5:30 and 7:30.

The members of the Altar sodality will receive holy communion at the 7 o'clock mass next Sunday morning.

TORPHY AT HARVARD.

William A. Torphy, a graduate of the Technical High, and later at Boston college, has passed the examination for admission to the Harvard Law Training course for ensign's commission. Mr. Torphy, who is son of John E. Torphy, the grocer and marketman, is well remembered as editor of the school paper at Tech, and in other leading positions while there.

Members of Good Will Circle, Companions of the Forest of America, are to pay their last respects to their late companion, Ida M. Waring, tonight at her home.
