on."

Scholtz Drug Co., of Denver, Colo., says: "Fletcher's Castoria has come a household word. Seemingly every family where there are children uses it."

Reynolds & Mansfield, of Boston, Mass., say: "We have nothing but say about your Castoria and we do not hesitate to give it our unqualified endorsement."

The Drug Stores, of New York City, say: "Fletcher's Castoria is one of the best and most popular preparations in our stores. We have found it out good to say about it."

The Wilson Drug Co., of St. Louis, Mo., says: "Of the thousands of proprietary medicines for which we have demand there are a very few of them that we can conscientiously recommend and your Castoria is in this few."

The Dyche & Co., of Chicago, Ills., say: "The increasing demand for Castoria shows that a discriminating public is not slow to seek merit and once convinced that it does all and even more than is claimed they do not hesitate to recommend it to their friends."

The Lowell Drug Co., of San Francisco, Cal., says: "We have always believed in the 'original man protection' and have been particularly careful in all anything but the genuine and original Castoria (Fletcher's). Many manny calls every day for this article from people who say they cannot be without it in their homes."

FLUE FATALITIES NOW NUMBER 53 AT BEND

Conditions with reference to the universally prevalent influenza are markedly improved at the powder plant, where a decided decrease in the spread of the disease is being noted.

In the several temporary hospitals at the plant there is a total of about 500 cases under treatment, and the admissions of new cases is already falling below the number of those discharged—an excellent indication, said Captain R. C. Derieux, of the United States public health service in charge of the local situation.

The proportion of severe cases is also materially lower in comparison with what has been reported from other cities. Dr. Reese, chief surgeon at the plant, authorizes the statement that to date only fifty-three deaths from influenza have occurred at the plant since the beginning of the epidemic—a refutation of a number of extravagant and pernicious rumors that have gained circulation.

Every precaution is being taken to further limit the continued spread of influenza, and ample facilities are available for the treatment and protection of those attacked.

Three additional physicians of the United States public health service have arrived in Nashville for duty in connection with the local influenza situation, both from St. Louis. They are Dr. Louis Bolsilniere and Dr. Andrew Henske.

This makes a total of eight St. Louis physicians now here on this duty. Four have been assigned to duty at the powder plant, three at the city hospital and one in associate care of cases in Nashville.

MAYOR-ELECT DIES WITHOUT TAKING OATH

ALBANY, Ala., Oct. 27.—Captain Samuel Blackwell, mayor-elect of Albany, stricken with paralysis the day following his election, died this morning without having taken the oath of office. He was one of the state's most distinguished lawyers, and during the campaign made a number of stirring speeches for Governor Dorsey, Senator Heflin, Senator Underwood and others. He was a member of the Methodist church for fifty years.

and, and although there are few promotions in spite of their good work, there is never a word of complaint.

Finds Weather Hot.

"Received your last two letters just before I left the trenches and have been devouring them ever since. You have nothing on us in regard to heat, for it has been hot as thunder here and we all nearly melted. Yesterday I had a nice cool bath and have been comfortable ever since, for it turned a bit cooler today. Night before last we had a terrible artillery duel with the boche, lasting from 9 in the evening until sunrise. None of us could sleep at all, and everything rocked and shook terribly. Part of the time I was out in front of the guns on horseback, and my ears are still ringing from the noise. I have never heard such a crashing and banging. The whole line was a mass of fire as far as one could see. Every gun was in action, even the heavy artillery, and we all went on and watched them until well into the morning. There is nothing in the world more terrifying and awe-inspiring than a battle. I feel helpless as a pigmy, and yet I want to grab a rifle and bayonet and go forward. It is impossible to describe one's sensations. Various lights and rockets calling for this and that are constantly being put up on your right and left and behind you up and down the line as far as you can see. Great sheets of flame leap into the darkness from the artillery and every now and then a boche shell comes over, bursting, perhaps, near you; perhaps quite a distance away; but you never worry, simply because you know it will do absolutely no good. One has his duty to perform and he carries on regardless.

Rest Billet Misnomer.

"One of the misnomers of the war is the so-called 'rest billet.' There is no such animal. I have been in France over eight months and I can truthfully say that I have never seen one. Wherever we go, we always seem to be accompanied by whistling projectiles or bursting bombs from the boche aircraft, who persist in dropping their d— bombs in all the most unlikely places where they are sure to fool us. When out of our sector we are continuously under fire from their long-range guns and often feel like running back to the comparative quiet of the front line trenches. There, unless the boche or ourselves put on a show, one is quite safe, for most of their artillery fire over our heads, smashing up lines of communication in our rear.

"I often wonder if there is a place in Flanders where one could go and be free from their bombing and shelling. For a time a lot of us lived close to a Red Cross hospital and felt quite free, thinking that at least we could sleep without being molested. But the first night we were there Fritz and Heine promptly began to rout us out, throwing over six-point 5's and spattering our huts with bits of mud and shrapnel. The wonderful clear moonlight nights that would mean so much to you and me at home over here are filled with frightfulness, for Fritz in his bombing plan is much more accurate and is almost sure to hit his mark on such a night. Every night promptly at 10:30 over he comes, and all the civilians seek the cellar. We can always distinguish the hum of his motor, and on clear nights it sometimes seems as if the air is full of Huns. On one or two occasions he has flown low and raked us with machine gun fire.

Worst Phase of War.

"Night bombing is by far the worst phases of the war; nothing will put one's wind up as much as an air raid, and it is surely a helpless feeling. The archies crack-and-bang all night and hardly ever hit any of the planes. Their main duty is to keep the Huns so far up in the air that it is difficult for them to see objects on the ground. I often wonder how the civilians stand the irritations and inconveniences and distress this war is causing. At night they squat for hours in damp cellars; trenches have been dug across their crops, and, as a rule, their barns are filled with soldiers. They give, give, give and their compensation is practically nothing.

"There is a little town about seven miles back of the line which up to three weeks ago seemed to be immune from shell fire. Quite a number of refugees and peasants had taken advantage of a good opportunity and started a lot of little one-room shops. You could get almost anything—Williams' shaving soap, razor blades, boots, shirts, etc. Just a week ago the Germans started bombing at night and now it is a town of the dead. Two shops are still open, but the rest have closed their doors.

"I am sending you a German helmet and a gas mask. The helmet is a beauty and belonged to a German staff officer. He crack-and-bang all night and hardly ever hit any of the planes. Their main duty is to keep the Huns so far up in the air that it is difficult for them to see objects on the ground. The helmet is one of the old type and very difficult to get now. Staff officers sometimes wear them in the trenches, but very seldom. Have already been offered 250 francs for the one I am sending you. It is almost as good-looking a war souvenir as you can get. Well,

DR. D. A. DOBBS HEADS MINISTERS' ALLIANCE

Notwithstanding the unusual demands on the local ministers by the deaths and suffering from the prevailing epidemic, there was a representative attendance of pastors at the meeting of the Alliance Monday morning and a feeling of harmony and united purpose to go forward were clearly evident.

The president, Rev. Prentiss A. Pugh, opened the meeting with appropriate remarks. He said: "We should be more than usually alive and alert at this critical time and should be more together than ever before. The allied armies are fighting together for a great purpose, and the churches should unite and pull together for the great part they are to play in this crisis."

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Dr. Dayton A. Dobbs; vice-president, Dr. Ryland Knight; secretary, Rev. A. P. Walker.

The expediency of holding a meeting on each Monday morning at 9 o'clock, preceding the denominational pastors' conference, with an enlarged program for service and fraternal unity, was discussed at length. It was decided to discuss the matter at the conference of each denomination and ascertain the full sentiment and report at the next regular meeting, November 4.

If carried, the term will extend to May, 1919, when monthly meetings will continue through the summer.

It was decided to hold a meeting with the colored alliance quarterly.

Rev. W. A. Dinkins, A.M., D.D., editor of the Christian Herald of Jacksonville, Fla., and president of the Florida Lincoln College, was granted the privilege of the floor. He made a very impressive patriotic appeal in behalf of his institution.

The meeting closed with a circle of fervent prayer, in which all took part, for the spiritual guidance of the President of the United States in this crucially testing hour.

Flu Hits Sumner.

GALLATIN, Tenn., Oct. 7.—(Special.)—Spanish influenza in epidemic form has struck Gallatin and Sumner County, and in many instances has developed into pneumonia, but no fatalities have been reported so far. Owing to the scarcity of physicians here, owing to the fact that several are now in the army camps, the remaining physicians of both town and county are kept busy calling on patients. Notwithstanding the prevalence of the malady all the schools have remain open with good attendance.

APPEAL MADE FOR VOLUNTEER NURSES

Women and Girls Wanted to Aid in Care of Influenza Victims.

You women and girls who have had the Red Cross courses in home care of the sick and elementary hygiene, for the sake of humanity, volunteer your services in the present epidemic of influenza.

There are families in Nashville so stricken with the illness that there is no one left to wait on the others. A woman passed a certain house yesterday and was amazed to find the man of the household on the street begging some one to come inside and attend his wife and child who were both afflicted with "flu" while he went to work. The woman did what she could for the stricken mother and took the child home with her.

This is only one of thousands of cases. It is up to the women to give their services in the crisis and help stamp out the epidemic. The women who have had the Red Cross courses and pledged themselves to service in any civic emergency have an opportunity to show their true worth and they are expected to come forward and work. Even a day's time or a part of a day can be utilized to good advantage.

Mrs. John W. Thomas, city chairman of the woman's committee, Council of National Defense, is making the call for volunteer workers to register with Mrs. Acree at the board of health, at the Red Cross headquarters or at the Y. W. C. A.
