

calmly turned a page in her notes and prepared for another shooting of the same scene, before the leading man and an extra, deciding there was something abnormal (unreal, said the Professor!) in Evelyn lying so still on the floor, rushed to her, lifted her head, and found she was unconscious. The Professor himself had gone on puffing his pipe until the big lights went out, incredulous with the rest of them.