This volume consists of an alphabetical glossary of the Mandi and Achik words that appear in the first two volumes. The reader needs to understand the principles by which the words have been alphabetized:

1. Garo never uses c except in ch. It would be possible to drop the h entirely without introducing any ambiguity. In deference to Garo tradition I retain the h, but ch can be thought of as a single letter and that is the way it is alphabetized.

2. Slightly more confusingly ng is also alphabetized as if it were a single letter and as if it follows n in the alphabet. Thus a word with n will always precede an otherwise identical word that has ng. Sin'-a ‘cold’ precedes sing'-a ‘ask question’. Less obviously, perhaps sin'-ka-ri ‘cold season’ also precedes sing'-a because the g in sing'-a is just one part of the letter ng, while the k in sin'-ka-ri is a separate letter. This method of alphabetization has the advantage that it brings together words of related meanings.

3. Except for occasional use in borrowed words, where the original spelling is sometimes preserved, written Garo does not use the letters f, q, v, x, y, or z. Nor do most Mandis find it easy to pronounce the sounds that these letters represent in English or in other languages. They will not be found in the Garo words in this glossary.

4. Garo uses one extra letter that is not a usual part of the Roman alphabet. This is “‘”, and it is used to represent the raka (glottal stop). This is the symbol used for the raka in most Garo publications, although a raised circle or even an apostrophe is sometimes used instead. In the published Garo Dictionaries, the raka is consistently printed, but it is ignored for purposes of alphabetization. Whether pa'- precedes or follows pa- depends on the letters that follow in the next syllable, and not at all on the raka.
In this glossary, by contrast, · is regarded as a letter like all the other Garo letters, and it is alphabetized as the first letter of the alphabet, preceding even a. This means that so'-a precedes sok-a ‘arrive’, because · occurs earlier than k (or than any other letter) in the alphabetical sequence.

5. One other important principle must be kept in mind: Initial syllables are fully alphabetized without any influence from the second syllable, seconds are alphabetized without influence from thirds, and so on. For example, sa-ri ‘sister-in-law’ precedes sak-sa ‘one person’ because sa- precedes sak-. Neither the r of sa-ri nor the s of -sa has any effect on the alphabetization of the earlier syllables. Both so-a ‘rotten’ and so-no-a ‘will be rotten’ come before both so-a ‘burn’ and so-no-a ‘will burn’ because so- comes before so’. Only when initial syllables are identical does the alphabetization of the second syllables become significant.

It may help to think of ch, ng, and even l’, m’, n’, and ng as if they are single letters, for that is, in effect, how they are alphabetized. The order of alphabetization, then, is: ·, a, b, ch, d, e, g, h, i, j, k, l’, m, m’, n, n’, ng, ng*, o, p, r, s, t, u, w.

This method of alphabetization has the great advantage that it consistently groups words with identical syllables together, and this means that words with related meanings tend to be grouped together as well. The principles of alphabetization are illustrated by the following words that are arranged according to the alphabetization system used in the glossary:

sa-ri ‘sister-in-law’
sak-sa ‘one person’
sin-a ‘like’
sin-grik-a ‘like each other’
sin-te-a ‘hang’
sir-a ‘cold’
sir-be-a ‘very cold’
sir-ka-ri ‘cold season’
sing-ga ‘blowing horn’
sirg-a ‘ask’
sirg-no-a ‘will ask’
sir-a ‘rot’
sir-no-a ‘will rot’
sir-si-a ‘wet’
sir-a ‘burn’
sirg-no-a ‘will burn’
Glossary

so'-ot-a ‘kill’
sok ‘breast’
sok-a ‘arrive’
song-a ‘set up a post’
song'-a ‘cook’
